

If I was able to trade body parts for AV goodies I would already be the Black Knight from Monty Python's Holy Grail. But whilst I rolled around limbless on the floor I wouldn't think twice about proffering a major organ for Bryston's SP3 processor. Not only is it really rather special but, at ten grand, it's the only way I am ever likely to afford one....

Richard Stevenson

has been writing about consumer electronics for more than a decade and is renowned for his extensive knowledge of AV receivers, power amps and processors

